Decision of the CIPS Presidium
12.03.2020.

The Presidium has taken the decision concerning the impacts of the pandemic made by the Coronavirus on the sport fishing.

Decision of the CIPS Presidium

The situation caused by the Coronavirus is becoming worldwide always more and more preoccupying. In this situation the CIPS Presidium – while aware of his responsibility to protect the health of all participants, athletes, accompanying people and, obviously, their families, has decided to postpone all international events – including the championships of the three disciplines: freshwaters, sea and fly fishing, and, of course, the 41st Congress in Acapulco as well – until, for the moment, the end of May 2020 but of course when competent international and national authorities will provide more reassuring information regarding the development of this dangerous epidemic which has already caused many deaths.

The CIPS Presidium will follow the development of the epidemic and in full knowledge of the information will make new decisions, in close cooperation with the FIPS Boards regarding the holding of the championships and the international events.

In the name of the CIPS Presidium
